

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A carton for a cabinet unit includes a removable panel which remains in place while the carton and its contents are in transit. At the retail location, the removable panel may be removed to provide a window through which the contents of the carton may be observed so that the retail customer may inspect the color and appearance of the cabinet unit within the carton without removing the cabinet unit from the carton. The window is covered by a transparent film which is secured to the inside surface of the carton wall in the area which surrounds the removable panel. The removable panel may be returned to its original location and taped in place over the transparent film when the carton is to be moved from the retail location to another location. The carton may be constructed from a blank of double-walled corrugated paper board.